DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to the amendment filed on April 10, 2006.
2. The text of those sections in Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. Claims 1, 7, 8, 10, 12, 20, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hill (5,397,106) in view of Malachowski et al (5,219,159).

Hill discloses a sheet material trimming apparatus (see FIG 1) comprising: a first cutter (12') arranged to trim an edge (11) of a sheet material (1) in a first direction (shown by the arrows in the first step); and a second cutter (17') arranged to trim an edge (7) of a sheet material (1) in a second direction (shown by the arrows in the second step) different from the first direction. Hill fails to disclose a drive roller as claimed. However, Malachowski et al disclose a drive system having a drive roller (24) for advancing sheet material (100) in a first direction by rotation of the drive roller (24) and for translating the sheet material (100) in a second direction by translation of the drive roller (24). See FIGS 1A-1C. This drive system aligns sheets that are out of alignment. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the Malachowski et al drive system as a station on the Hill apparatus prior to the cutting steps for the purpose of aligning sheets before cutting.

4. Claims 11, 14, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hill in view of Malachowski as applied to claims 1 and 12 above, and further in view of Kamprath et al (5,278,624).

The modified Hill device teaches a device substantially as claimed, but fails to disclose the drive shaft includes an external thread and the drive roller includes an internal thread. However, Kamprath et al disclose a drive system for moving and aligning sheets comprising a drive shaft (48) with an external thread (52) and a drive roller (14) with an internal thread. If unrestrained, the roller would translate with shaft rotation. However, with a holding or stopping mechanism, the roller rotates in a single location. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide an external thread on the drive shaft and internal thread on the roller of the modified Hill device, as taught by Kamprath et al, and include appropriate stops on the extents for the purpose of better controlling rotational and translational movement of the roller.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed April 10, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues the prior art cited does not teach a device wherein the drive roller is mounted on a drive shaft and rotation of the drive shaft acts to both rotate and translate the drive roller. Specifically, Applicant argues the rollers of Malachowski et al are translated by a lateral drive mechanism which translates the entire frame and rod assembly upon which the rollers are mounted, and thus the rotation of the drive shaft acts only to rotate the drive roller. This argument is not understood. When the drive mechanism of Malachowski et al moves the entire frame and rod (drive shaft), the rod causes the rollers to move as claimed because the rollers are mounted to the rod.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
